

Andrew Painter, Esquire

Walsh, Colucci, Lubeley & Walsh, P.C. A

Andrew A. Painter is a native of Northern Virginia, Andrew has cultivated a unique set of skills, knowledge, relationships, and expertise in the zoning/land use and transactional aspects of real estate law. He has represented clients in 16 Virginia localities, from Arlington County to Winchester, and specializes in securing zoning approvals and providing counsel to residential, commercial, and industrial developers and landowners.

Prior to joining Walsh Colucci in 2007, Andrew worked for two members of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, the County Administrator of Caroline County, Virginia, and former Virginia Governor (now U.S. Senator) Mark Warner. Andrew has frequently served as an adjunct professor in political science and urban history at the University of Richmond and the University of Mary Washington. He is the author of a 2018 book chronicling the history of the Virginia wine industry, Virginia Wine: Four Centuries of Change, published by George Mason University Press and distributed by the University of Virginia Press.